PREFACE

In 1998 the Cranberry Genealogy Club decided to do a cemetery reading project in Cranberry Township. Our inspiration was the North Hills Genealogical Society's publication of their first cemetery book, which described cemeteries within Hampton Township, Allegheny County, PA. Elissa Powell and other members of that group had presented a program about their project at one of our monthly meetings. Following their example, we began to organize our project.

We devised a form to take to the cemeteries for our transcriptions. The form was similar to the one used by the North Hills group. Using the form, we described the marker and transcribed its wording and punctuation as accurately as possible. Instruction sheets were developed for the crew of readers so that we would use standardized terms and notations as much as possible.

We used the following descriptive definitions:

Stone: Single - one person

Combo - two persons

Family - More than two persons

Type: Flat - writing mostly on horizontal surface

Upright - writing mostly on one vertical side

Obelisk - tall slender pillar usually with writing on more than one side

Table top - flat slab covering the grave

Note: Corner post - small marker usually with numbers or initials indicating plot boundaries

Foot stone - Marker placed at the foot of the grave.

Side rails - mark sides of the grave

Veteran flag (and/or) holder - indicate which war, etc.

A slash (/) indicates the end of a line.

When the tombstone referred to more than one person, we kept the individual's information together. For example:

HACKATHORN

Clarence E.

1906 - 1977

Fidelity

Anna Mae

1905 - 1967

Integrity

Was transcribed:

Anna Mae/1905 - 1967/Integrity (right)

Veteran flag WWII

We read cemeteries from left to right, front to back, facing the stones unless there was an available plot map. In that case, we read in order of the plot numbers for ease in relocating the graves later. We read in pairs. Both persons read the stone and the paper to insure accuracy.

When we began the project, we were able to locate six burial grounds with extant markers within Cranberry Township. We suspected a couple of other locations, but we were unable to find any markers at those sites. We have also heard of additional plots within the township, but we have yet to locate and read those scattered markers. Working with the six cemeteries, we had no idea that it would take us several years to complete the readings.

We generally worked in crews of four to six people. For several years the dedicated members of the Cranberry Genealogy Club could be found reading stones on any Saturday when the weather was good. As the years went by, the crew members changed. However the determination to preserve the information on the markers never waned.

As we read each cemetery in turn, I typed the manuscript. Each cemetery was re-read as the manuscript was proofread in the field. After all the pages were compiled, the index of names was built. If a name seemed to contain more than one surname, the marker is indexed under both surnames. In this way, maiden names for married women are indicated whenever possible.

Although on several occasions the entire club met at a cemetery to work on the project, the bulk of the field work was accomplished by a very dedicated group including Shirley Weber, Donna Dietrich, Shirley Wise, George Brown, Don Halper, Amy Arner, and Sheila Brown. We also wish to thank the members and staff of the various churches associated with the cemeteries. In several cases they supplied us with plot maps and/or church histories that were very helpful. In the case of the Ramsey Cemetery, we are grateful to the descendants who graciously shared their family heritage with us.

This project has been much more involved than we anticipated, but those of us who have labored on it have learned a great deal. We have also developed strong friendships based on our mutual interests in genealogy and family history. It is our hope that you will find your "lost" family information within these pages.

In 1844 four families began holding services in a barn belonging to one of the families. The group eventually became the present Dutilh United Methodist Church. The original families were Detmore and Elizabeth Peirsol Shaner, William and Jane Lonsdale, William and Sara Crea, and Richard and Elizabeth Jones. The first church building was erected in Marshall Township at the Butler County line in 1853.

By 1878-79 the congregation had outgrown its facilities. Charles Dutilh of Philadelphia donated one and one-fourth acres in Butler County for a new church. The church continued to grow. In 1899, Charles Dutilh donated an additional two acres. The property was increased again in 1962 by the gift of 1.5 acres from Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Taylor.

The Dutilh Cemetery Association was officially formed in 1940.

The cemetery is comprised of two sections divided by a grassy space. Facing west, we read the stones from right to left in front to back sections following plot maps that were provided by the church. Dutilh was the only church that provided such maps to us.

This history of the church was gleaned from The Dutilh Centennial Cookbook, 3rd edition, published by the church in 1987. This resource describes in more detail the early development of the church and its participants. Please note that according to this book, the church (and presumably the cemetery) did not own this property until 1878. However, there are a few grave stones which indicate death dates earlier in the 1870's. We have no explanation for this discrepancy. We report the readings as we saw them in the late 1990's.

Pinewood Memorial Gardens were established in the 1970s as Cranberry Township really began to boom. It is the most recent and the most active burial site in Cranberry Township today. Many of the markers were placed when lots were purchased, not when the persons named were deceased. For this reason, many markers only hold birth dates or no dates at all. As we read this cemetery, we came across numerous markers for people that we know are alive. One of our readers was even surprised to find his own marker. We report them as we found them.

While I discussed this project with a worker at Pinewood, she explained the difference between a cemetery and a memorial garden. Memorial gardens only have flat markers and/or mausoleums. They are designed to appear more like an open park. Cemeteries are distinguished by taller stones or markers that can be seen from a distance.

Pinewood Memorial Park is divided into several distinct sections and a mausoleum. Each section was read individually. Graves are recorded in rows and numbers as they were found. However, in each section, row #1 corresponds to plot #1 on the maps provided by the memorial park. All markers were flat metal plates in excellent condition unless indicated otherwise.

The Plains Presbyterian Church appears to have the oldest established church cemetery in Cranberry Township.

In 1806 Reid Bracken began to preach in the area that has come to be Plains Presbyterian Church. Services were apparently held in a tent until the first log church was built in 1820 on property donated by Benjamin Davis. A brick church was built behind the log structure in 1839. The old structures were torn down, and a new church was built in 1878-79. Through the years basements and additions were made. The most recent addition of the educational wing was built in the 1970's.

This historical information was found in My Neighborhood: Cranberry Township, Book III, written and published by Helen Goehring Dewald, copyright 1996.

Many stones or markers are either missing or illegible in this cemetery. An attempt was made to reconcile the existing stones with the church's records for the cemetery. In the following account of readings, information that was only available in the church's records is printed in italics. The church's map generally indicates the owner of the plot, not necessarily the person buried there. In some cases this may provide clues to relationships.

The Ramsey Cemetery is a family cemetery located on private property in the eastern part of Cranberry Township. It is not visible from any existing street, and there are no indications to the public that it is there. This is deliberate and is an attempt to avoid vandalism.

The cemetery is maintained by descendants of the Ramsey family who currently reside in the area. All enquiries or attempts to visit this cemetery should be coordinated through the Cranberry Genealogy Club, which will contact the caretakers.

Daniel Otto gave the land for the original church and cemetery which came to be known as St. Johns Evangelical Lutheran Church of Lovi. In the early days, it was called either Daniel's Church or Otto's Church. Its first official record is dated February 12, 1834, although Daniel's Church is mentioned in early Synod proceedings from 1833. This first official record states that the German Evangelical Congregation has existed for a number of years, but did not receive its first minister until 1833. It was a duly notarized letter asking for donations to build a suitable building for worship and instruction.

Early records (between 1834 and 1869) are sparse. Apparently records of baptisms, confirmations, marriages, and deaths have been either lost or were never kept by the church. Services were conducted in German, and all church records until 1900 are also in German. In 1911, when the constitution was revised, it was explained to the congregation in English.

This information was produced by the church for its 160th Year celebration in 1994. It was provided to us by a current member of the congregation.

Many of the stones and markers in this cemetery are in German. This presented a special challenge to us in reading the stones. Once we learned the German terms for "born", "died", and "aged" we could make more sense of the markers. A search on the Internet led us to a scholar who interpreted the phrase which appeared in various forms on many of the stones. "HIERRUBEL IN GOTT," means, "Gone from here to God" according to this source.

Many of the markers in this cemetery are very old, and in poor condition. They appear to be carved of a particularly soft stone which we first thought was sandstone.

DUNLAP

Row 19, #15, Single, Upright, Granite, Excellent condition, Floral design & Cross
J. GEORGE DUNLAP/ 1918 1989

Several misplaced stones were located in a hedgerow separate from the cemetery. Most were buried or piled in the hedge and were unreadable. Two stones were marked as follows:

Stone #1 MOTHER/ RUHE SANFT IN/ FREIDEN

Stone #2 Footstone: H. T.

This cemetery is a private family burial ground, which is not affiliated with the Oak Hill Alliance Church next door. We called this cemetery the Zion Cemetery because previous researchers told us that it was once affiliated with a church of that name. The legend is that the church suffered a disagreement among its congregants so severe that the church disbanded. The split was so emotionally deep that several families even removed their loved ones from the cemetery. (Whether they actually disinterred the remains or merely moved the markers is unclear.) We have been unable to corroborate this story, but the spacing of extant markers and the pile of stone fragments and tombstones would seem to fit.

Most of the markers in the cemetery show some relationship to the Henry family. The marker pictured above commemorates the Henry males, most of whom are listed on individual stones in the cemetery.
